A BIG DEMOCRATIC DESERTION.

The debate of Democratic statesmen in the Senate on Wednesday last is of sufficient importance to go upon the record. It was a family row, and Republican Senators were amused but silent listeners. Senator Vest of Missouri, who a short time before the election wrote that Mr. Cleveland had by his message "challenged the protected industries of the country to a fight of extermination," and added that "the fight is to the death," moved to put bituminous coal on the free list in the Senate revenue bill. At once Mr. Faulkner, the Democratic Senator from West Virginia whose term will not expire until 1890, arose and opposed the motion. He planned himself firmly on protection ground by declaring that, owing to the cost of labor, bituminous coal could not be mined here and sold on the seaboard in competition with Nova Scotia, and that putting it on the free list would benefit only the manufacturers. A Republican Senator asked him if he knew of any manufacturers who had requested the removal of the duty, and he frankly replied that he did not.

Still more emphatic was Gorman of Maryland, who followed Faulkner. His seat adjoins Vest's, and in his excitement he raised his fist and shook it over the Missouri Senator's head. Looking Vest straight in the eye, he told him that his course, if persisted in, would keep the Democratic party in the minority. He then spoke of the Mills bill, which he pronounced an "extreme measure," that he could not approve, and yet he said that it did not propose free coal. He declared that he stood where the Democratic party always stood when it was victorious, that the party was defeated in the last election by its action on the tariff, and that the result would be the same in the next election if it did not change its course. He spoke of the benefits of protection in developing the coal trade, and said it had reduced the price from $6.75 per ton in 1860 to $2.50 in 1888.

Gorman's speech made Vest very angry, and he jumped to his feet when the former sat down, declaring that he was as full of fight as ever. No man was a Democrat, he shouted, who deserted the party on the tariff issue. He believed in tariff reduction all along the line, whether it hit Maryland or not. As he proceeded Mr. Vest grew more and more bitter in his remarks, and there was visible excitement throughout the chamber. He repudiated with scorn the claim that the policy of the Democrats on the tariff question brought about their defeat. "We were beaten," he said, "because the Republicans of the North raked up the old dying embers of national strife, fought the war anew, and raised the cry of sectionalism. They denounced the Mills bill as a Southern measure, brought forth by a committee composed of Southern men, and appealing to the passions of the Northern voters defeated us." The Republicans laughed heartily when Vest reminded Gorman and his weak-kneed associates that they were compelled to stand by the position of the party in the last canvass, whether they liked it or not.

Then Voorhees, "the tall Sycamore of the Walhwa," who represents a state richly endowed with soft coal, arose for a speech, and those who heard him say that he was much more than usually eloquent. He declared himself with much vehemence, "a Democrat in good standing." He said that during the canvass he addressed the miners in his district, assuring them that bituminous coal should be protected, and they voted the Democratic ticket. The Mills bill, he said, had been the platform of the party, and that placed the duty on bituminous coal at 75 cents a ton.

Voorhees's speech closed the debate. In the vote that followed, ten Democrats united with the Republicans in voting against Vest's motion, and it was defeated, 11 to 81. The Democrats who voted against the motion were Bate of Tennessee, Brown of Georgia, Daniel of Virginia, Faulkner of West Virginia, Gorman and Wilson of Maryland, Payne of Ohio, Pugh of Alabama, and Turpie and Voorhees of Indiana. These are all hold over Senators, and will sit in the next Congress. The terms of Bate, Daniel, Faulkner, Gorman and Turpie will not expire till 1890. So large a desertion breaks the ranks, and will either force it to repudiate free trade at the next election or bring a division as irreconcilable and ruinous as that of 1890. Free trade is dead.

CONTESTED SEATS.

The Committee on Contested Elections in the next House is likely to have a busy time during the first session. The expectation of carrying the election made the Democrats unusually bold and unscrupulous, and frauds were perpetrated openly and without fear which are now going to return to plague their inventors. The notices of contest already served and those sure to be presented when Congress meets will not fall below seventeen. Of these only one is by a Democrat; Seymour of the fourth district of Connecticut proposing to fight for the certificate awarded to Frederick Miles.

In the fourth district of New Jersey N. W. Voorhees will contest the election of Samuel Fowler, Democrat, whose 72 plurality was discovered after Voorhees's election had been conceded. Sydney E. Mudd will contest the right of Barnes Compton to 57 plurality in the fifth Maryland district. In the first and thirteenth districts of Indiana Wm. F. Barrett and B. F. Shively will be called to show whether their pluralities respectively of 20 and 335 were honestly obtained, and the high handed proceedings of the Indiana Senate yesterday in excluding the Republican Lieutenant Governor from his seat by force, with the sanction and support of the Democratic state officials, do not improve the aspect of their case. In the eighteenth Illinois Jehu Baker, who defeated Wm. B. Morrison two years ago, proposes to run Wm. S. Farnum on the anxious seat. There will also be a contest in the fifth California district for the certificate awarded to Thomas J. Clinch.

In the South the alleged majorities which the Republican contestants have to overcome are larger. That for James Phelan in the Tenth Tennessee district is $,000, but the contestant proposes to show that it was obtained wholly by fraud. In the fifth Louisiana Frank Morey will undertake to dissipate the whole of Chas. J. Boast's pretended majority of 16,412. The sixth district of the same state will be contested, though S. M. Robertson claims a 7,764 majority, while James B. Morgan's majority of 8,161 in the second Mississippi is to be set aside. Then there will be contests in the ninth Georgia, the second Florida, the third Virginia, the first West Virginia and the seventh South Carolina. The Democrats whom it is proposed to turn out of their seats by these contests are, in the order named, Allen D. Candler, R. W. Bullock, George D. Wise, George W. Atkinson and William Elliott. From what is already understood in relation to their cases, there is not the slightest doubt that several will have to step down and out. And if the certificates to the elected Republicans in the third Tennessee and the third and fourth West Virginia districts are with held or given to their Democratic opponents, there will be twenty contests to engage the attention of the House.

The House will begin its work with a Republican majority, though a narrow one. The Democrats no longer talk of revolution, for they have heard from Gen. Harrison through the Indianapolis Journal that he will not as President recognize a Democratic House organized through the exclusion of lawfully elected Republicans. Coming fresh from a state in which Democratic fraud is rampant in the Legislature and in every department controlled by that party, he is not likely to be patient with fraud at Washington when he has the opportunity to smite it. Before the first session of the fifty-first Congress is ended the Republican majority in the House will be between twenty-five and forty.

"PERSONAL COMFORT"

Grady on Top Once More, and Cleveland in the Soup.—A Chapter of Political History.
From the Albany Express today.
Thomas Francis Grady yesterday resumed his old seat in the state Senate. It is seven years since Mr. Grady first came to Albany in the capacity of Senator. He had been in the Senate. He had been in Albany a year when the tidal wave of destiny here Grover Cleveland from the Mayor's office in Buffalo to the executive office in the capital. He had been the ring-leader in the deal by which the three Tammany Senators punished their County Democratic rivals but lost the control of the Senate to their party.

Mr. Grady quickly became an "offensive" partisan in the eyes of the great gubernatorial accident. Mr. Cleveland had been in office less than ten months when he sought the political destruction of his victorious opponent from the sixth. It was quickly accomplished; and Mr. Grady was the first victim of that dogged and dimming disposition in Mr. Cleveland that could not brook either opposition or equality.

This was the instrument that Governor Cleveland used:
EXECUTIVE ORDER.
ALBANY, Oct. 1883.
Hon. John Kelly:
I have determined to do so, however, because I see no reason why I should not be entirely frank with you, I am anxious that Mr. Grady should not return to the next Senate. I do not wish to conceal the fact that the present contest has been a very involved in this matter. But I know that good legislation based upon a pure desire to promote the interests of the people, and not for the sake of party methods, are also deeply involved. I forbear to write in detail of the other considerations having relation to the welfare of the state and the approval of the people, but I believe in the better character of its representatives. These things will occur to you without suggestion from me. Yours very truly,
GROVER CLEVELAND.

The whirligig of time brings its reverses. Five years ago Grover Cleveland condemned Thomas F. Grady to political exile. The Chicago convention of 1884 rang with applause at the mention of the enemies whom the Governor had made in Tammany hall. The Cleveland legion forced on with Grover at the helm and the horseless mailed to the prow. It carried his ascendancy to the White House. Tammany sought the spoils. John Kelly died. Grady was returned.

How marked a change two short months have wrought. Grady rises on Cleveland's destruction. He is summoned home from exile. He is vested with the Senate of the State. Nay, more! It is even rumored that Governor or Hill stations him at his right hand as the leader of the Democratic minority in the Senate.

Surely Grady's is a real vindication. Surely President Cleveland, as he lingers in the White House these dreary days surrounded by but the relics of power while his former friends "the Jews" repudiate him, and the politician have turned toward the new-found deposit on Capitol hill, must be agitated with the thoughts of Wolsey as he beholds the triumphal return of Thomas F. Grady.

★ OH! MY HEAD!! ★

Suffering of a New Jersey Sufferer—Dyspepsia, Sick Headache—Terrible Tossing.

When the stomach is torpid it soon becomes clogged with half digested matters, the blood becomes vitiated and foul; the other organs fail to act normally and induce a train of symptoms, such as dyspepsia, sick headache, dizziness, drowsiness, palpitation of the heart, pain in the back, loss of appetite. "There are few things that I believe in with all my heart and it affords me pleasure to tell of one of them." The speaker was Senator Albert Merritt, head of the large fruit firm, 82 Park Place, N. Y., and the scene his office. "I was sick and feared I had become fatal to endure the

Tortures of Dyspepsia

And a dangerous affection of the kidneys. A relative said to me, "Why don't you try Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, made at Rondout, N. Y. I did so. I grew steadily better. I could eat, digest, sleep, and work with a clear head and the yellow color of my skin had given place to the tones that announce pure blood and every organ of the body in healthy action. Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy entitled to the credit of saving my life. If any one has a doubt about the truth of my statements, let him write to me. I can give you the names and addresses of fifty persons who affirm, as I do, that 'Favorite Remedy' has been to them a help and a blessing in time of need." At Delver, Tarrytown, N. Y., says: "For a long time I was troubled with severe attacks of dizziness and

Blind Sick Headache

Due to impure blood and a disordered state of the system. I was advised to try Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, of Rondout, N. Y. I did so and have been completely cured. It's the best thing I ever heard of for any disorder of that nature and I have recommended it to many with the greatest success." Daniel Pitts, Tarrytown, Mass., says: "I recommend Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy for dyspepsia and sick headache. I suffered for many years with these complaints and was cured by

IN THEATRES AND BALL ROOMS.

What is Going on in the World of Amusements in this Vicinity.

Masquerade Ball, Hauck Gymnasium Club, Washington Hall, January 28.

Fifteen hundred people gathered together in Newburgh's Opera House to see "A Brass Monkey," one night this week.

Another pleasing entertainment was given in Liscomb's Opera House, last evening, by the "Hamlin W. O. Concert Company."

Concerning the play which will be presented at Kingston Opera House to-night the "New York Herald," it is said, has printed this:

"The Cattle King" is the title of a new melodrama which was presented last evening at the Windsor Theatre to an immense audience by James H. Wallick, who is best known to the public through the remarkable escape of his supporting cast, and it is a melodrama in every sense of the word, and well acted and given with great spirit in the role of "Bob Taylor" and "Dare-devil Dick."

Many tickets have been sold for the concert to be given, under the auspices of Rondout Masonic Lodge, in Liscomb's Opera House, Rondout, on Tuesday evening. The programme is as follows:

Duet—Violin and Harp, "Evening Song," Fliege Signori Vitale and Fanelli.

While an Ontario & Western train was passing over a high trestle or bridge north of Walton, Delaware County, one day recently, a wheel broke on one of the freight cars. Fortunately the train was on the bridge, and thus what might have proved a fatal and costly accident was averted.

The trouble with the West Shore tunnel at West Point has been the cause of a great deal of annoyance to the patrons of that line. When the trouble occurred it was determined not to build any temporary structure, but to put an entirely new arch, thereby ensuring a structure that would not be likely to cause, under the most unfavorable circumstances, any trouble of a similar character. The repairs have taken considerably longer time than anticipated, but the result achieved is one that the West Shore people may well be proud of. A solid brick arch, four feet in thickness, extending through the entire length of the tunnel, makes a structure that, by beyond question, is likely to stand forever. The work of cleaning up the tunnel is now in progress and trains will be running through on time, commencing Sunday, January 13.

Told in a Country Store.

In the town of Denning, Ulster County, is a family "distinguished" for the length of their legs. These men are noted bear hunters. A short time ago a party started on the trail of a bear. Among them were two of these long-legged men. After traveling a day and a night the party lost the trail. During a gathering in a country store the injury was made how it happened. "O, that's easy," said one of the bear hunters, "John"—referring to one of the long-legged men—while chasing the bear in the dusk of the evening stepped right over the animal without knowing it and walked on wondering where on earth that bear had gone to so suddenly."

Times Have Changed, However.

A resident of the town of Olive, Ulster County, tells a story about the "good old days." Many years ago there was a great temperance movement. It reached Olive and a society was formed. The Old School Baptists were bitterly opposed to it. One day an Elder preached a fiery sermon against the movement. While he was pouring hot shot a prominent pillar of the church became greatly excited, jumped up and, waving his cane in hand began to stomp up and down the aisle, saying in a loud tone: "I say so too, I say so too, give 'em fits."

TUSSELS WITH HUNGRY RATS.

RATHER AN EXCITING ADVENTURE, AS RELATED BY C. JONES.

How a Woman Fought Many Rodents to Protect Her Child, and How Help Came in the Very "Nick of Time," out Near Ellenville.

"Give me a penny and I'll tell you a story."

Owing to the heavy rains of late, water rats have been driven to seek refuge in barns, outhouses or wherever they could find shelter from the pelting rain and restless torrents. A great regiment of hungry-looking rodents that make their home along the banks of the Delaware & Hudson Canal, sought refuge, one day recently, in an outhouse adjoining the premises of a man named Simpson, who resides north of Ellenville, on a knoll close by where a landslide occurred some time ago. Becoming hungry the rats left the outhouse and boldly invading the dwelling, attacked a babe that was lying asleep in a cradle. The mother rushed to the infant and tried to drive off the rats, when they fiercely attacked her.

The woman's screams attracted the attention of Charles Jones, who has charge of the mail and express coach running between this village and this City. Seizing his whip, Jones rushed into the house. Many hungry cadavers of jumping rats with gleaming eyes were looking wildly at a woman who held an infant aloft in one arm, while with the other she tried ineffectually to "broom" the sharp-fanged rodents that were climbing over her garments to get at the child. "It was a blood-curdling sight," Jones says, "and one which I shall never forget. I snapped my whip at the rodents, but not until a great deal of hot ashes and coals were thrown over them did they pretend to beat a retreat. I made good use of my whip, watching meanwhile to see that nothing was in danger of igniting from the coals that were scattered lavishly about. One grey, old veteran returned over and over again to the charge, but I finally gave him such a cut with my whip that he, too, disappeared to return no more."

Both mother and babe were bitten and scratched. The wounds bled profusely. No serious results have followed. The house is comparatively isolated, and if the stage driver had not happened to be passing at the time and heard the woman's screams, there is no telling how horrible and fatal the consequences might have been.

RECALLING OLD TIMES IN KINGSTON.

When Lounzers and School Boy Truants Were Placed in the Stocks.

Marius Schoonmaker, in his History of Kingston, gives the following description of the Court House and scenes around it, before the Revolution, in the old Village of Kingston: "The Court House contained family rooms on the first floor, Court room on the second floor. The Judge's bench was against the rear wall of the building. Behind it was a large frame containing the Coat-of-Arms of the State. The Bar was directly in front of the Judge's bench with Grand Jury benches on one side and the Petit Jury benches on the other. An aisle led from the entrance along the jury benches and Bar to the front wall, from that aisle back to the north wall of the building were the seats of the spectators, rising one above the other as you proceeded back so that the rear benches came within seven or eight feet of the ceiling. There were two jury rooms on the same floor with the Court room. The jail and dungeons were in the south end of the building. * * * In the front yard was the whipping post and alongside the entrance walk were the stocks. Lounzers along the streets during school hours on week days were treated to the enjoyment of the stocks for a season. Sometimes the boys would salute those 'enjoying' such privileges with rotten eggs."

A BIG DEMOCRATIC DESERTION.

The debate of Democratic statesmen in the Senate on Wednesday last is of sufficient importance to go upon the record. It was a family row, and Republican Senators were amused but silent listeners. Senator Vest of Missouri, who a short time before the election wrote that Mr. Cleveland had by his message "challenged the protected industries of the country to a fight of extermination," and added that "the fight is to the death," moved to put bituminous coal on the free list in the Senate revenue bill. At once Mr. Faulkner, the Democratic Senator from West Virginia whose term will not expire until 1890, arose and opposed the motion. He planted himself firmly on protection ground by declaring that, owing to the cost of labor, bituminous coal could not be mined here and sold on the seaboard in competition with Nova Scotia, and that putting it on the free list would benefit only the manufacturers. A Republican Senator asked him if he knew of any manufacturers who had requested the removal of the duty, and he frankly replied that he did not.

Still more emphatic was Gorman of Maryland, who followed Faulkner. His seat adjoins Vest's, and in his excitement he raised his fist and shook it over the Missouri Senator's head. Looking Vest straight in the eye, he told him that his course, if persisted in, would keep the Democratic party in the minority. He then spoke of the Mills bill, which he pronounced an "extreme measure," that he could not approve, and yet he said that it did not propose free coal. He declared that he stood where the Democratic party always stood when it was victorious, that the party was defeated in the last election by its action on the tariff, and that the result would be the same in the next election if it did not change its course. He spoke of the benefits of protection in developing the coal trade, and said it had reduced the price from $6.75 per ton in 1860 to $2.50 in 1888.

Gorman's speech made Vest very angry, and he jumped to his feet when the former sat down, declaring that he was as full of fight as ever. No man was a Democrat, he shouted, who deserted the party on the tariff issue. He believed in tariff reduction all along the line, whether it hit Maryland or not. As he proceeded Mr. Vest grew more and more bitter in his remarks, and there was visible excitement throughout the chamber. He repudiated with scorn the claim that the policy of the Democrats on the tariff question brought about their defeat. "We were beaten," he said, "because the Republicans of the North raked up the old dying embers of national strife, fought the war anew, and raised the cry of sectionalism. They denounced the Mills bill as a Southern measure, brought forth by a committee composed of Southern men, and appealing to the passions of the Northern voters defeated us." The Republicans laughed heartily when Vest reminded Gorman and his weak-kneed associates that they were compelled to stand by the position of the party in the last canvass, whether they liked it or not.

Then Voorhees, "the tall Sycamore of the Wabash," who represents a state richly underlaid with soft coal, arose for a speech, and those who heard him say that he was much more than usually eloquent. He declared himself with much vehemence, "a Democrat in good standing." He said that during the canvass he addressed the miners in his district, assuring them that bituminous coal should be protected, and they voted the Democratic ticket. The Mills bill, he said, had been the platform of the party, and that placed the duty on bituminous coal at 75 cents a ton.

Voorhees's speech closed the debate. In the vote that followed, ten Democrats united with the Republicans in voting against Vest's motion, and it was defeated, 11 to 31. The Democrats who voted against the motion were Bate of Tennessee, Brown of Georgia, Daniel of Virginia, Faulkner of West Virginia, Gorman and Wilson of Maryland, Payne of Ohio, Pugh of Alabama, and Turpie and Voorhees of Indiana. These are all hold over Senators, and will sit in the next Congress. The terms of Bate, Daniel, Faulkner, Gorman and Turpie will not expire till 1893. So large a desertion betrays the party ranks, and will either force it to repudiate free trade at the next election or bring a division as irreconcilable and ruinous as that of 1860. Free trade is dead.

CONTESTED SEATS.

The Committee on Contested Elections in the next House is likely to have a busy time during the first session. The expectation of carrying the election made the Democrats unusually bold and unscrupulous, and frauds were perpetrated openly and without fear which are now going to return to plague their inventors. The notices of contest already served and those sure to be presented when Congress meets will not fall below seven. Of these only one is by a Democrat; Seymour of the fourth district of Connecticut proposing to fight for the certificate awarded to Frederick Miles.

In the fourth district of New Jersey N. W. Voorhees will contest the election of Samuel Fowler, Democrat, whose 72 plurality was discovered after Voorhees's election had been conceded. Sydney E. Mudd will contest the right of Barnes Compton to 57 plurality in the fifth Maryland district. In the first and thirteenth districts of Indiana Wm. F. Parrett and B. F. Shively will be called to show whether their pluralities respectively of 20 and 355 were honestly obtained, and the high handed proceedings of the Indiana Senate yesterday in excluding the Republican Lieutenant Governor from his seat by force, with the sanction and support of the Democratic state officials, do not improve the aspect of their case. In the eighteenth Illinois Jehu Baker, who defeated Wm. B. Morrison two years ago, proposes to put Wm. S. Forman on the anxious seat. There will also be a contest in the fifth California district for the certificate awarded to Thomas J. Clinch.

In the South the alleged majorities which the Republican contestants have to overcome are larger. That for James Phelan in the Tenth Tennessee district is 8,000, but the contestant proposes to show that it was obtained wholly by fraud. In the fifth Louisiana Frank Morey will undertake to dissipate the whole of Chas. J. Boatner's pretended majority of 16,412. The sixth district of the same state will be contested, though S. M. Robertson claims 7,764 majority, while James B. Morgan's majority of 8,161 in the second Mississippi is to be set aside. Then there will be contests in the ninth Georgia, the second Florida, the third Virginia, the first West Virginia and the seventh South Carolina. The Democrats whom it is proposed to turn out of their seats by these contests are, in the order named, Allen D. Candler, R. W. Bullock, George D. Wise, George W. Atkinson and William Elliott. From what is already understood in relation to their cases, there is not the slightest doubt that several will have to step down and out. And if the certificates to the elected Republicans in the third Tennessee and the third and fourth West Virginia districts are withheld or given to their Democratic opponents, there will be twenty contests to engage the attention of the House.

The House will begin its work with a Republican majority, though a narrow one. The Democrats no longer talk of revolution, for they have heard from Gen. Harrison through the Indianapolis Journal that he will not as President recognize a Democratic House organized through the exclusion of lawfully elected Republicans. Coming fresh from a state in which Democratic fraud is rampant in the Legislature and in every department controlled by that party, he is not likely to be patient with fraud at Washington when he has the opportunity to smite it. Before the first session of the fifty-first Congress is ended the Republican majority in the House will be between twenty-five and forty.

"PERSONAL COMFORT"

Grady on Tom More, and Cleveland in the Senate. A Chapter of Political History. (From the Albany Express to-day.) Thomas Francis Grady yesterday resumed his old seat in the state Senate. It is seven years since Mr. Grady first came to Albany in the capacity of Senator. He had been Mr. Grady served but a single term in the Senate. He had been in Albany a year when the tidal wave of destiny bore Grover Cleveland from the Mayor's office in Buffalo to the executive office in the capital. He had been the right hand in the deal by which the Tammany Senators pushed their County Democracy rivals but lost the control of the Senate to their party.

Mr. Grady quickly became an "offensive" partisan in the eyes of the great gubernatorial accident. Mr. Cleveland had been in office less than ten months when he sought the political destruction of the silver-tongued Senator from the sixth. It was quickly accomplished; and Mr. Grady was the first victim of that dogged and dominating disposition in Mr. Cleveland that could not brook either opposition or equality.

This was the instrument that Governor Cleveland used:

EXECUTIVE CHAMBER, ALBANY, Oct. 2, 1881.
Hon. John Kelly:—It is not without hesitation that I write this. I have deliberated long, and I am now ready to say to you, I am anxious that Mr. Grady should not return to the Senate. I do not wish to say that the fact that my personal comfort and satisfaction are involved in this matter. But I know that good legislation, based upon a pure desire to do the interests of the people, and the improvement of legislative methods, are also deeply involved. I forbear to write in detail of the other considerations having relation to the welfare of the state and the approval to be secured by a clear for the better in the character of its representatives. These things will occur to you without suggestion from me. Yours very truly,

GROVER CLEVELAND.
The whirligig of time brings its revenges. Five years ago Grover Cleveland condemned Thomas F. Grady to political exile. The Chicago convention of 1884 rang with applause at the mention of the enemies whom the Governor had made in Tammany hall. The Cleveland boom forced on with Grover at the helm and the horseshoe nailed to the wall. I carried his assent to the White House. Tammany sought the spoils. John Kelly died. Grady was forgotten.

How marked a change two short months have wrought. Grady rises on Cleveland's destruction. He is summoned home from exile. He is vested with the Senatorial toga. Nay, more! It is even rumored that Governor Hill stations him at his right hand as the leader of the Democratic minority in the Senate.

Surely Grady's is a real vindication. Surely Cleveland, as he lies in the grave, would have been surprised to find that the White House these dreary days surrounded by but the ribs of power while his former "friends" with the keen perception of the politician have turned toward the new-found deposit on Capitol Hill, must be agitated with the thought of Walsey as he beholds the triumphant return of Thomas F. Grady.

Mrs. W. about as bad a case of malaria as could be, and yet Kaskine cured me after I had been with almost every drug in the Pharmacopoeia.—J. H. Hild, B. A., Chemist Maryland Agricultural College.

For eight years I had dumb ague interlarded with self-dead a score of times. I never found a medicine worth the bottle that held it, until I took Kaskine. That was a happy day for me. It gave me appetite and strength, and I took a step into a land of health and life.—Thomas Toole, Schuylerville, N. Y.

Kaskine can be taken without any special medical advice. $1.00 per bottle, or six bottles for $5. Sold by druggists or sent by mail on receipt of price.
